

I am writing in response to your consideration of weakening ownership laws. I am completely against the notion. Our media is already controlled by too many big corporations that selectively report. It would only be worse to have one big company controlling all information given to the public. Do not allow international affairs (and your fears/emotions associated with such affairs) overshadow common sense and concern for the public.

Sincerely,

Erica Swartz